HEARTH & HOME LOVE

Colonel John Laughter

Old Times In Warren

Copied From A Warrenton, NC Newspaper Dated March 20th, 1916.

"Self is the only prison That can bind the soul; Love is the only angel Who can the gates unroll. And when he comes to call thee, Arise and follow fast, His way may lie through darkness, But it leads to light at last."

There are very few people now living who knew Colonel John LAUGHTER. Indeed, there are not many of the present generation who ever heard his name; and yet there was a time when Colonel Laughter was one of our prominent citizens, and was well known throughout the county.

It is remarkable how soon a man, even a prominent man is forgotten. John R. JOHNSON died in 1889. He had been a conspicuous figure in Warrenton for nearly fifty years, and yet very few of the present citizens of the town remember him. The same is true of the late John White, Dr. R. D. FLEMING, Capt. DUGGER, Dr. FOOTE, Henry A. FOOTE, and host of others, who were the leading citizens of Warrenton when I came here thirty-one years ago. Judge Walter A. MONTGOMERY moved from Warrenton to Raleigh in 1891, and yet within the last year of one of our leading businessmen, who was raised here informed me that he had no recollection of Judge MONTGOMERY. Thus it always is. We live, we pass on, and are forgotten. There is comfort in the thought that, though we are forgotten by men, God keeps us in everlasting remembrance.

John LAUGHTER, the father of Colonel LAUGHTER, came from England to this county in Colonial times, and settled in Bute County some time previous to the Revolutionary War. He purchased a tract of land on Hawtree Creek, about five miles from the present town of Warrenton, where he raised his family; and where he died and was buried. John LAUGHTER, Sr. was a man of affairs. He stood well in the county and left to his descendants the heritage of a good name. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and doubtless fought under Sumner at Guilford Court House and Eutaw Springs. Being a "hatter" he was detailed to make hats for the soldiers. This he would do, when conditions did not require his services in the field. It is more than probable that the stories which he told his family of his stirring soldier life had much to do with the military trend of his son's mind.

John LAUGHTER, JR. was a soldier in the War of 1812. He went out as captain of a company of dragoons, but was soon promoted and served until the close of the War as Colonel of the Second North Carolina Dragoons. His regiment was stationed during the entire war in Norfolk, Va. He had a high ideal of military life, and was a strict disciplinarian; but he was kind to his men, and was a very popular officer. As long as any of his men, in this section, lived they would frequently visit him to talk over their army life; and he often visited them and was always a welcome guest in their homes.

After the war, Colonel LAUGHTER returned to Warren County, and, for many years, lived the life of a farmer. He was also a surveyor, and was in great demand in surveying land in this and adjoining counties. In the course of time, he met with reverses, lost his plantation, and gave up farming. Subsequently he devoted himself to school teaching and surveying. He had received the best educational advantages available in this section. He was probably a student in the old academy in the first years of its existence, where he was instructed in the branches usually taught in such schools, at the time. Either then, or later under a private tutor, he studied surveying, which was considered an exceedingly respectable and profitable profession. The late James A. EGERTON and other surveyors of the two past generations in this county were taught surveying by Colonel LAUGHTER.

Perhaps, as a teacher, Colonel LAUGHTER most profoundly impressed himself upon the community in which he lived. In his schools, he taught in addition to the usual branches, surveying and military tactics. As a result, there were several good surveyors in Warren County, and the whole of the Hawtree section was fired with military enthusiasm. This was, doubtless, the reason that the young men of that community hurried into the army, at the first call for men, at the beginning of the War Between the States.

After the war of 1812, Colonel LAUGHTER was, for many years, general of the militia of this district. He insisted, however, on being addressed as Colonel instead of General; because as he said, he won the former title in actual warfare in the face of the enemy.

When the Nat TURNER insurrection spread terror throughout all this section of North Carolina and Virginia, Colonel LAUGHTER led his command to the scene of conflict, and was present at the capture and execution of TURNER. His daughter, Mrs. PEGRAM, who died about seven year ago, at the ripe old age of ninety, informed me that she was about twelve years old when her father went to aid in quelling the Nat TURNER insurrection. When he returned, he brought with him blood-curdling stories of the cruelties perpetrated upon the defenseless people by TURNER and his band. One of them was the murder of a schoolteacher and her pupils. When the soldiers came upon this bloody scene, and saw the teacher and the children lying dead in their blood, they began at once to search for any that might have escaped. After a while they found on the outside of the house, between the funnel of the chimney and the wall a little girl, who on the first alarm climbed to this safe retreat, and lay snugly hidden, crazed with fear, while the cruel negroes were murdering her teacher and schoolmates.

It is a remarkable coincident that on the same plank road where Nat TURNER devised his scheme for killing the whites, and liberating the slaves, General GRANT matured his plans for the overthrow of the Confederacy and the liberation of the slaves. Here is a fertile suggestion to any one that may be in search of material for a thrilling story.

A former pupil and admirer of Colonel LAUGHTER told me of his famous duel with a Mr.

ANDREWS. Andrews felt that Colonel Laughter had so deeply offended him that nothing but the blood of the old war horse of Hawtree could atone for the offense. He, therefore, challenged the Colonial to mortal combat. The challenge was promptly accepted, and the weapons and conditions of the duel were agreed upon. They met at a picturesque place on the banks of the historic Hawtree. News of the duel had gone abroad, and a large concourse of people assembled to witness the fight. The Colonel and his second were the first on the ground. After a time ANDREWS and his second were seen approaching. When he saw the colonel waiting to receive him, in the attitude of a god of war, his heart failed him, and he cried out in terror; "Don't shoot, I'll withdraw the challenge!" The people shouted with laughter. The Colonel kindly refrained from shooting, and the affairs passed off without bloodshed.

Colonel LAUGHTER was a proud man, and very ambitious. He aspired to the best society for himself and family, and strove to maintain, under the adverse circumstances of later years, the same manner of living and social relations to which he had been accustomed in the more prosperous period of his life. His fondness for fine clothing, made so as to set off his soldierly figure to the best advantage, resulted in part perhaps from his military life and training. He was not only fond of fine clothing, but refused to purchase anything that was offered to him below what he regarded a respectable price. A good story used to be told illustrative of this peculiarity. He went to a store to purchase a vest pattern. The clerk spread several before him, one of which pleased the would be purchaser. He asked the price, and being told that it was only two dollars, he exclaimed in disgust: " I come to buy a vest pattern, and you insult me be offering me this cheap stuff! show me a vest pattern suitable for a gentleman to wear!" The clerk quietly removed the offending goods and exhibited several other pieces. After a while be brought out the same pattern that had been so contemptuously rejected, and said: "Colonel here is a piece of goods for which we have no demand, on account of the price. What do you think of it?" The Colonel examined it for a moment with evident pleasure and inquired the price. On being told that it was seven dollars and fifty cents, he promptly said: "I will take it; for I do not like to wear common goods."

Colonel John LAUGHTER was a man of good physique, clear out feature and striking personality. A stranger would recognize him at once as a man of more than ordinary importance. His features indicated intellectuality, his voice, though commanding was exceedingly soft and musical. His erect figure and soldierly movements marked him as one acquainted with military life and accustomed to the duties of a soldier.

For more than fifty years the martial form of Colonel John LAUGHTER has been wrapped in death's dreamless sleep. Most of his pupils have passed away, and none of his children remain; but now and then I meet with one who when I ask: "Did you ever see Colonel Laughter?" replies with brightening face: "Certainly, I knew Colonel LAUGHTER. Why he was my old teacher, and if you had met him you would have taken him for the president or some great general. He was one of the most distinguished looking men that I ever saw".

An exert on John Stephen MEADOWS

John Stephen MEADOWS, of Louisburg, was born in Granville County, N.C., February 25, 1840. At the beginning of the Great War, he abandoned his occupation as a traveling salesman and devoted the next four years to the military service of his State and the Confederacy, of which he was a devoted supporter throughout. Enlisting in June, 1861, as a private in Company D, Twelfth Regiment, North Carolina troops, under Col. Sol WILLIAMS, he was on duty as a private for about eighteen months, during which he participated in the campaign in south eastern Virginia, fighting at Hanover Court House and in the Seven Days battles, where his regiment suffered heavy loss. Surviving the carnage there, he was taken sick when the army entered Maryland and was left at a farmhouse near Frederick City, where he was captured. Fortunately, he was imprisoned but two months, at Fort Delaware and then being exchanged, returned to the ranks in time to fight at Chancellorsville. At Gettysburg he was shot in the right hand, compelling its amputation and he again fell into the hands of the enemy, being held at David's Island Hospital, New York, until September. Then being paroled, he returned home disabled for further service. In his crippled condition he took up the study of medicine and after studying at Richmond, VA, was graduated at the Atlanta Medical College in 1868. For five years, he practiced the profession near Oxford, NC and then embarked in the tobacco business, which he has ever since followed. Under President CLEVELAND's first administration he was collector of internal revenue for the Fourth District. Since 1890, his home has been at Louisburg, where he is proprietor of the MEADOWS hotel. He was married in 1866 to Elizabeth Delona HOBGOOD, of Oxford, who died in 1872, leaving four children, of who three are living, Toccoa, Samuel and Benjamin Hill. In 1874, he was married to Dora DAVIS of Henderson, by whom he has seven children: Emma, John, Willie, Claude, Owen, Boyd and Ruth.

Retrospect of Oxford Bound to Win in the Race of Prosperity Oxford Ledger, November 20, 1891

A brief outline of the Grand strides she has made since 1880 in building up and the large trade established now – the best leaf tobacco market in the state.

As we turn our attention to the chances in Oxford within the last dozen years, we find they have been very striking. For example, in 1880 we had 8 warehouses in operation. They were all small wooden structures and the total amount of tobacco sold barely reached 800,000 pounds. At the present time there are only 7 of the merchants that were doing business here in 1880, while there is an accession of 45 merchants constituting new blood, that are doing business here at the present writing. We now have six mammoth warehouses, all except one of which is constructed of brick and the quantity of tobacco sold is immense as compared with 1880, ranging according to some authorities, between 10 to 12 millions with bright prospects for the future. We have a choice corps of tobacco buyers numbering sixty eager and ready to buy the farmers tobacco at the highest market prices.

In 1880, we hardly had a leaf tobacco factory. We now have the town dotted with these important structures numbering some 60 or 70. The KIMBALL Tobacco Co., through their efficient representative Mr. J.M. CURRIN, buys largely on the Oxford market. This company, now a branch of the great American Tobacco Co., sold their valuable real estate in Oxford to the American Tobacco Co. that utilize the buildings in storing and handling very large quantities of tobacco.

Messrs. HANCOCK, MOOREMAN and Co. have recently come upon this market as large buyers. They are liberal and public spirited and are a very important acquisition to the Oxford market. They will handle tobacco on a big scale.

Conspicuous among other enterprises that Oxford is proud of is the Modern Tobacco Barn Works under the management of Capt. W. H. SNOW, one of the most enterprising business men in the State. The Modern Barn Co. has a reputation now throughout the whole of the tobacco district of the United States. They manufacture a kind of basket that is used by the tobacco farmers which seems to be just the thing the farmers want as they find it impossible to keep up with their orders for baskets. Their barns they sell in Connecticut, Kentucky, Georgia and indeed all over the country. They have a good thing and they know it and their business is destined to be one of the greatest enterprises in North Carolina. They are fair and square in their dealings. Their smoking tobacco, it is claimed, is simply charming and is treated by a new process that makes it contain a minimum of nicotine.

The Alliance Tobacco Factory is a grand success. It is daily growing in importance and volume. Orders are pouring in from every direction and the way the business is increasing their present quarters will hardly be adequate for their accommodation. This is peculiarly a farmers institution and as they are doing good work and selling their goods as cheap as can be offered, the popularity of their brands is greater and greater as time moves on. They are daily making shipments to all points of the compass. The success of the enterprise is unprecedented and is a big card for Oxford. We say hurrah for the Alliance Factory! It shows what continued effort will do.

The Farmers Alliance leaf warehouse we learn is doing a good business also.

Next we come to the great plant of HUNDLEY Brothers & Co., who have been such important business men in Oxford. Their sash and blind factory and brick yard are run on a big plane covering several acres of land and giving employment to a large number of hands. Everything seems to be run by steam and on the most modern improved plans. They consume immense quantities of lumber and brick in carrying out their many contracts, they being the largest contractors of this section. Their style of doing business is of the most honorable kind and they are to be in the highest degree commended for their promptness in doing work which they push as fast as possible. We are proud of such valuable and honorable contractors. Their value to the town is beyond all calculation.

As to the Oxford schools it is like a twice-told story to speak of their merits. Besides the famous HORNER School and celebrated Oxford Female Seminary we also have Miss Bettie CLARKE's popular school for young ladies and the meritorious school for Mrs. FAUCETTE, whereas in 1880 only two of the foregoing institutions of learning were in existence here.

We have an additional wagon factory turning out first-class, substantial work, which cannot be excelled, by any house in the State.

In South Oxford, a Knitting Mill has been established and fitted up with all the latest machinery and is turning out goods equal to any like factory of the kind in the South.

These various enterprises to which we refer have a majority of them had their origin here since 1880. And besides the enterprises named a great many more are in progress here to which we have not time to refer in this article that were scarcely dreamed of in 1880 – when the town had only about 1200 or 1500, where-as in the town and suburbs, we have now 4,000 inhabitants. We then had no market house, no electric light system, no banking facilities and hardly a brick store. In the town, whereas we now have handsome blocks of brick stores numbering 58 in all, including a magnificent 3-story bank building and a 3 story Odd Fellows Temple, both of which will do credit to any city. We have a good flouring mill plant, hogshead factory and over two hundred new residences have been built, some of which are very handsome and built in modern style.

Oxford will be seen is keeping pace with the other progressive towns in the South, with a steady, substantial growth. It has been on a regular building boom for several years and the town is dotted on all sides by new buildings in course of construction. Verily Oxford is on the road to grand success. Hurrah for Oxford and Granville county first, last and always.

Town and Country The Local Events of the Day Oxford Ledger November 20, 1891

What is transpiring around and about us, in town and country-The movements and doings of people you know, etc.

- You will find some important matter in our supplement.
- · Medford is on deck with a new advertisement.
- Court convenes on the 30th, Judge WINSTON presiding. There is quite a full docket.
- Splendid breaks of tobacco Tues. and Weds. And "you bet" every pile sold for top-notch prices.
- We were glad to meet on the Alliance Warehouse floor Wed. Mr. B. F. TUCKER of Vance County.
- Rev. Joseph RENNIE is conducting a series of meetings at the Methodist church this week and is preaching eloquent sermons.
- Jailor MOORE now has eight boarders at the Hotel de Granville, one for assaulting a woman, one for fighting and six for larceny.
- The Register of Deeds office is now in the Commissioners room and the Superior Clerk has taken up quarters for the winter with Sheriff CREWS.
 - Farmers, read the change in BULLOCK and MITCHELL'S advertisement and you will see some of the big prices paid on the floor of the Banner for tobacco.
 - Mr. Joe HALL, the harness man; is now nicely fixed up in his new store in the Odd Fellows Temple. Call and see him as he is now prepared to offer bargains.
 - William JONES, of Tally Ho township, who has been confined in jail has been examined and adjudged insane and has been conveyed to the Asylum at Raleigh.
 - The young members of the Methodist Church have organized a band of Christian Workers for mutual aid and benefit, which will be sure to result in great good to the community.
 - The holiday trade will soon begin. The Public Ledger is the great home paper of Granville and as a medium for reaching all classes cannot be equaled. Advertisers will please remember this fact.
 - Our gallant Hon. Baldy WILLIAMS had everything his own way in Sub-Treasury discussion at Rocky Mount last week. He met with a royal reception from the large audience present and scored a victory for reform.
 - Luther RAGAN, of Berea, informs us that he has added 81 opossums to the 102 published last week making in all 133 caught this season. He claimed it had not been a good season for the varmints owing to the extreme dry weather prevailing for over a month.
 - Deputy Sheriff J. A. TAYLOR who left Oxford several days ago armed with a requisition from Gov. HOLT on Governor of Florida for Walter DANIEL, col., captured at Lake City, is expected back today. Daniel is wanted in Granville for an attempt of rape upon the person of a colored girl some two years ago.
 - J. B. F. PARHAM downs all the hunters thus far this season. On Monday he took his gun and went out to hunt for game. After some 7 hours hunting, he summed up his game and found that he had killed 59 partridges, 6 rabbits and 2 black snakes which he did not tag. Can Messrs. CURRIN, HALL and MCGUIRE beat this record?

- The Rock Crusher is a regular hummer and we wish every township in the county that is afflicted with bad roads had one so that they could macadamize them. This way of throwing up dirt in the middle of the roads to make dust in the summer and mud, knee deep in the winter is certainly a waste of time as well as the taxpayers money.
- Farmers that sold at the Banner Warehouse last week went home well pleased with prices, anxious to get more ready, while prices are so high. Farmers you need not fear as to prices as long as you sell your tobacco at the Banner Warehouse, you will go home pleased. Read J. M. BECK'S prices: 9, 16, 16 ¼, 20 ¾, 25, 33 ½, 33 ½, 16, 52.
- It strikes us that with $6300 at the disposal of the building committee of the Court House, they could have included in the contract respectable and convenient steps to get to the commodious court room, as well as rents for the accommodation of the public. The taxpayers will have to fork over more money, if they get the narrow dismal steps remodeled and seats put in the court room.
- Indeed, we are pained to have to chronicle the sad fact that Mr. Samuel HOLMES of Franklin county, who has been clerking for Mr. R. H. McGUIRE 18 months, is on the verge of the grave with Bright's disease. He is a most excellent young man and by his uniform courtesy and exemplary bearing has made many warm friends in our community. So consistent has his life been he expresses a willingness to die. We truly hope his life will be spared.
- A large number of our people attended the Exposition Wednesday. It was Masonic Day, and Hon. A. H. A. WILLIAMS delivered an address.
- Let the Coast Line Railroad be built from Dickerson crossing to Oxford and then, take the twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars which will be left of $40,000 in the treasury and join the Iron Mine Syndicate of Pennsylvania capitalist at RHODES Mines and build the Western Extension to Lynchburg and Durham Road. They will put $20,000 towards it.

Regular Course. The regular course of instruction, as already indicated, is that which has been found most successful in making finished scholars. Students are taught to think and act for themselves, and are required to state the how and the why of every step that is taken. The improvement realized in going through this course resembles the transformation of Osseo:

At one end goes in a school girl, Rough and rude and void of culture;

From the other comes a lady

A wise and well accomplished woman.

Partial Course. Every accommodation is offered to those whose limited time will not allow them to pursue the regular course. Parents are permitted to select the studies of their daughters.

Death of Mrs. J. D. Allen

Oxford Ledger November 20, 1891

Only in our last issue we were called upon to chronicle the death of her sweet cherub, and now it is our painful duty to announce that the mother has joined her babe in the "Mansions of the Blest," which took place on Tuesday morning from congestion of the lungs. Mrs. ALLEN has been in poor health for some time, but the family did not think that death was so near. She died with the assurance that she would reap the reward of the truly faithful, as she was a pure Christian and a member of the Methodist Church. Mrs. ALLEN was about 35 years of age and leaves a fond and devoted husband and two affectionate children.

She was a daughter of the late W.B. JEFFREYS, and sister of Messrs. Edward, T. B. and R. J. JEFFREYS.

We extend our warmest condolence to the bereaved family.

The interment took place on Wednesday at 2 o'clock p.m., the burial service being conducted by Rev. R.F. BUMPASS.

Annual Catalogue, Horner Military School, 1906 1st in a series of 4

The School

Founder: The Horner School was founded in 1851, by James H. HORNER, M.A., LL.D., and has been in successful operation since, under Dr. HORNER and his sons.

Purpose: The purpose of the school is to lead pupils to cultivate truthfulness, self-control, a right sense of honor, habits of systematic and close application in the performance of every duty, and to give them a thorough preparation for college, or a professional life.

Location: The school is located on an eminence known as "Horner Hill", in the suburbs of the town of Oxford, about forty-five miles north of Raleigh, and one hundred and twenty miles south of Richmond. It is on the Seaboard Air Line, and the Southern Railway, between Richmond and Raleigh, in the Piedmont section of North Carolina, and is about six hundred feet above sea level. A more beautifull and suitable location could not be found.

Climate: The climate is delightful, and healthfulness excellent. The school is far from the land of perpetual summer, as the thermometer often registers below freezing during the winter, and the first killing frost occurs about the 10th of October. There are comparatively few days, however, during the winter, when out-door exercises and sports cannot be engaged in with benefit to boys.

Building: The present school building was constructed in 1891 and enlarged in 1902. It was planned by the principal with a special view to the requirements of a school for boys. Recitation room, society halls, bed-rooms, teachers' apartments, and the assembly hall, are located in this building. All rooms have outside windows, and doors opening into the main central hall. Nothing has been spared to make the building comfortable and convenient. The bed-rooms are neatly furnished in oak. The floors are stained and may have rugs on them. The rooms are comfortable, winter and summer. We have accommodations for one hundred boarders, but limit the number to ninety, because the advantages to each cadet are greatly enhanced by not being crowded.

Edward JONES who married Abigail SUGAR was said to have had a brother named William. Does anyone have proof of what happened to him? Was he the William JONES shown on Lemuel LANIER'S 1750 tax list in Granville County? Was this the same William JONES on Capt. Benjamin SIMMS' 1754 militia list? On the same list was William JONES, drummer. Was this father and son? I would like to exchange information with anyone researching the LYON and COLEY families in Granville County.

Diggin' Up Bones

2.6 mi - turn left on Tom Hunt Rd (SR1633) - drive 1.3 mi - Cemetery is on right in a grove of trees next to the road in the corner of Tom Hunt Rd and Blackley Rd.

Recorded by Bonnie Breedlove and Genie Jenkins.

A correction to the Winter 1998 edition of the Granville Connections. On the Diggin' Up Bones map of the Overbey Cemetery I put the cemetery on the wrong side of the road. It should be on the left on Belltown Road. However, the written directions are correct. I hope that this hasn't caused too much confusion. Bonnie Breedlove, Co-Editor.

Creedmoor Will Have A Community Fair This Fall Creedmoor Times-News, July 31, 1918

That Creedmoor will have a community fair this fall is now an assured fact, the organization is partly completed and arrangements for holding the fair is being perfected. The names of the officers have not been announced and will not be until the organization is completed. Those having the matter in charge are optomistic over the encouraging outlook for a successful fair. There is no reason why this should not be so. Located in the best agricultural section of the state, and our people are alive to the benefits to be derived from such an institution. Let every man put his shoulder to the wheel and push it to a successful termination. It can be done by the cooperation of all our people.
